

LINCOLN COUNTRY

Around 1810, they say, a tall, lanky flatboatman en route to New Orleans stranded his boat in a millpond off the Sangamon River at New Salem, Ill.

His name was Abraham Lincoln and he liked New Salem so well that he returned after his trip to settle for six formative years.

It was here that he studied grammar and law by firelight kindled from a cooper's shavings. Here too he served as postmaster; deputy surveyor; enlisted in the "Blackhawk War" as a company commander; failed in business; and perhaps loved and lost Ann Rutledge.

Strangely, the six years that Lincoln spent in New Salem, from 1831 to 1837, almost completely encompass the town's brief history. It was growing and thriving when he arrived, but began to decline just two years after he left for the nearby state capital of Springfield.

In Springfield, Lincoln established himself as a successful lawyer, served as a state senator, U.S. Congressman and campaigned for a seat in the U.S. Senate, gaining the fame as a debater and politician that led to his election as the 16th President of the United States in 1860.

In Springfield, too, Lincoln began his tempestuous courtship with, and finally married, Mary Todd.

Today there is much to recall the memory of Lincoln in the area. New Salem has been recreated as it was in Lincoln's time with 13 cabins, the Rutledge Tavern and 10 shops, stores and industries. It is now a state park.

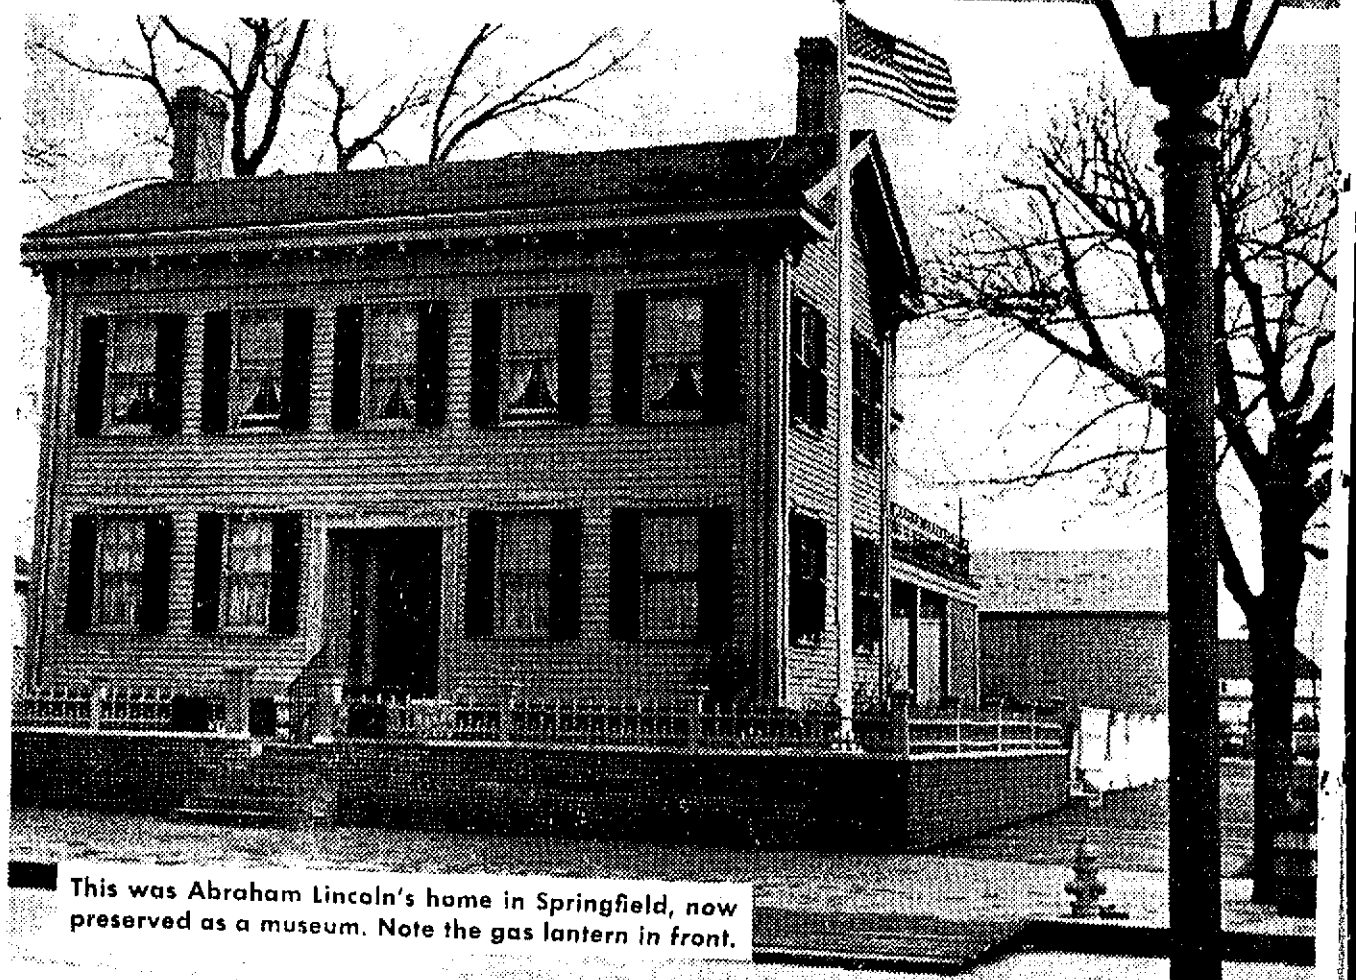

In Springfield, Lincoln's home, office, the railroad station where he departed for Washington, and many other sites are set aside to help recall the Lincoln legend.

Train Lincoln took to Washington is indicated at ticket window in Springfield depot museum.

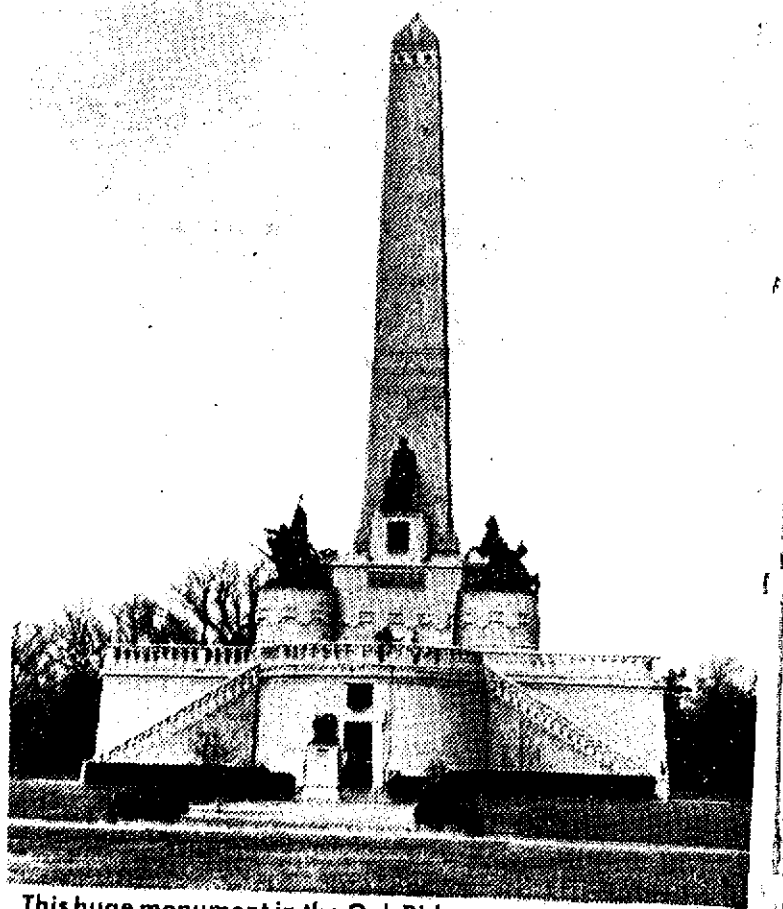

This was Abraham Lincoln's home in Springfield, now preserved as a museum. Note the gas lantern in front.

Lincoln's table is still kept in the offices he used when practicing law in Springfield. Old state capital drawings in background.

Lincoln's bedroom at his home on 8th and Jackson Streets in Springfield. Many of the furnishings and mementos here are preserved as he left them more than 100 years ago.

This huge monument in the Oak Ridge cemetery in Springfield marks the final resting place of Abraham Lincoln.

Receives Award

Dennis Ramsey

Dennis Ramsey was presented the Student Council Joe Amour Service Award for the Second Quarter of the 1965-66 school year Wednesday morning during a special chapel assembly at Hope High School.

Dennis, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. May, Jr., is President of the HHS Student Council as well as holding a number of other positions in the school. He is a two year letterman and starter on the Bobcats basketball team, a member of the National Honor Society, the Future Teacher of America, the Key Club, and the First Baptist Church. He was a delegate attending Boy's State last summer, received the Joe Amour Award for the second quarter of 64-65, and served as Vice President of the Student Council that year. He is also Mr. Hope High School.

Church Speaker

Stephen Heap

The Rev. Stephen Heap of Bethany, Okla., will be the evangelist during the Church of the Nazarene youth services Feb. 11-13. He is a native of Great Britain but spent most of his life in South America where his parents are missionaries.

Services start at 7:30 p.m. each day according to the Pastor, the Rev. George C. Prentice.

BARBS

Employees take frequent coffee breaks, but the boss is lucky if he gets an aspirin break.

Remember that your present becomes your past and act accordingly.

Awarded for Cookie Sales

Those Were the Days—And They Still Are

This is Boy Scout Week. Special events are planned, climaxing with Scout Sunday on Feb. 13, to mark the 56th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America. Pictures in this group are historic ones, glimpses of the early years of the organization. There are now 5,885,000 boys and adult leaders in the 143,300 units encompassing the various branches of scouting.

First troop in America is believed to be one formed in Pawhuska, Okla., in 1909. Founder, Rev. John Mitchell, at left, had been chaplain for Sir Baden-Powell, founder of Britain's Scout movement.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Most weeks, NBC's Bob Hope Theatre is a sleek, well-produced and thoroughly forgettable hour's diversion. But Wednesday night's "A Small Rebellion" was unforgettable and quite out of the ordinary.

It was essentially a dialogue between a man and a woman, full of implied promise and suggestion that quenched the fire of a young writer. The script by S. Lee Pogostin was less a drama than an account of the corruption of the young man by an older, completely worldly woman. And the parts were magnificently handled by Simone Signoret and George Maharis.

Maharis played a tough-talking and angry man of 25 who had spilled out his bitterness and hurt in a play about which we only received hints in the conversation. Miss Signoret was the great actress on whose acceptance of the central role hung the success of the production.

The woman saw that the role was a perceptive revelation of herself and that one of the characters was self-portrait of the writer. The entire action took place on the stage and in the seats of a vast, empty theatre as Miss Signoret, softly and subtly, persuaded the young man to change the brutal climax of his work so that the woman would be spared rather than destroyed as retribution.

I was quiet, gripping and very impressive. Miss Signoret was superb. Maharis had a tendency to hop and stride around with a little too much adolescent fervor but in general provided an excellent foil.

But for one "Small Rebellion" there are endless hours of tripe which one must sit through. Earlier in the evening, for instance, on CBS, "Lost in Space," the plot concerned a well programmed robot who became jealous of a rival robot and tried to commit suicide by short-circuiting its memory banks. Honestly, that was the story line, and "Lost in Space" isn't even a comedy series.

It is, in fact, a simple story about an average American astronaut family which has crash-landed its space ship on another deserted planet.

Steady As You Go
Dear Helen: This boy has been a good pal to me all my life (until they moved away two years ago.) Last summer our family went to their new home for a visit, and Ron suddenly realized I was a girl, while I was surprised to discover he was about the dreamiest boy I ever met.

Now we're writing regularly, and he comes to see me (with his parents) whenever he can, but he lives 70 miles away, which makes things rough. Last week-end he asked me to wear his ring as a symbol of going steady, and I was thrilled till I talked to my parents. My mother pointed out that I'd be missing out on things down here if I had to wait for Ron, instead of having friendly dates with others. (I'm 15 and Ron is my first real boyfriend.) My father was more direct.

He said if he saw a boy's ring in the house before I was 18, he would crush it to smithereens and mail it back to him, with his compliments. I know it is hard on fathers to see their little girls grow up, and I sympathize with Dad, but isn't it a little long to wait?

After thinking it over I DO agree with my mother, but — 18!!!! — LOU ANN

Dear Lou Ann: Don't worry about 18 until 16 arrives. Having wisely sidestepped this first steady hurdle, you may decide you like the open road. It's a lot more fun not being closed off with a ring, and I'm happy to say a lot of teens agree with me! — H.

Dear Helen: I'm 16 and my parent won't let me date. I have to be home by 8:30 p.m., and for every minute I'm late I'm grounded for a whole day. My mother is always sick, so I have to cook, iron, clean, besides doing homework. I'm willing but... I want a Little fun.

— Fagged Out
Dear F.O.: Your parents are much too strict, but my saying so won't change them.

A 16-year-old girl willing to take over management of the house is certainly mature enough to date. If your folks can't see that, they are too blind to recognize themselves in this column. — H.

Dear Helen: I'm a 15-year-old girl and I have a heavy problem. My measurements are 38-25-35. Most of my friends are not built quite this way. As a matter of fact — none!

I often wonder and worry: do boys like me because of this? I have been told by a few boys that I am good looking, but I think I'm only average. Most of my girl friends are prettier, so why do the boys come to me? The girls are starting to stay away from me because they think because I am built this way I must use my body to attract boys. I don't like them thinking this. What can I do? — Needs Help

Dear Needs: Boys may be attracted to a girl by her looks or figure, but they STAY attracted because of her personality. If you know they keep coming back because you measure up, not out, then ignore the comments of a few jealous girls. — H.

Dear Helen: I am 16 and a junior in high school. Last spring I read a letter requesting your readers to send mail to a man in South Carolina. He was a polio victim, in the hospital 13 years. Anyway, I wrote to him, and got an answer. He told me how much he appreciated my letter! Helen, I felt great! I still write to him, not to get a reply, but just to have the satisfaction of making someone a little happier. It's the greatest feeling! — Barbara

Child Falls Into a Pond; Drowns

FORREST CITY, Ark. (AP) —Cathy Rose, 6, of Forrest City, fell through a thin layer of ice on a pond near her home Saturday and drowned.

Authorities said the girl and her brother were playing when she walked onto the ice. The boy went for help and Johnny Long and Jeff Clubbs rushed to the pond and pulled Cathy out of the water, they said, but artificial respiration failed to revive the child.

Sunday—Monday at Saenger

Coming to Saenger Feb. 20th

Yvette Mimieux, young bride of law student Richard Chamberlain, finds married life on a university campus full of problems. The scene is from "Joy in the Morning," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer screen version of the best-selling novel by Betty Smith. Arthur Kennedy and Oscar Homolka costar in the color attraction.

NO MALICE

No American who ever lived had a greater grasp of the true meaning of Freedom than Abe Lincoln, the kindly and rugged-featured man who described this nation as having been "conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal."

But Abraham Lincoln knew that Liberty could not be won and maintained by men alone. He acknowledged Divine power. The Great Emancipator made that clear in all his classic utterances. The closing lines of the Gettysburg Address is our best example:
"... that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom ... and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."
... that is Americanism.

British Facing Railway Strike

LONDON (AP) — The British government and private firms made emergency plans today in the face of a threatened national rail strike next Monday.

London's subway workers say they would join the strike and bus drivers are planning a slowdown. The rail workers' wage demands, while not specified, exceed the government's guideline limit of a 3 1/2 per cent increase a year.

Seeking to keep operating during the transit strike, London's five main banks and some big companies chartered hundreds of buses for their employees.

Government workers living within four miles of their offices will be expected to walk to work.

WIN AT BRIDGE

'Always Attack' Wins for Ely

By JACOB Y & SON
1965 Vanderbilt Cup Winners
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The late Ely Culbertson was not only one of the greatest bridge theorists and writers of all time but he was one of the most imaginative players.

Ely's motto at the card table might well have been "Always Attack." He was definitely an apostle of the theory that you won't get anywhere if you won't take chances.

Here is a hand that helped his team win the national board-a-match team championship of 1931.

He sat West and opened one spade. He had a sound opening bid in the Culbertson or any other system and, needless to say, he was rather surprised to find his opponents at three no-trump when it next became his turn to bid.

He passed. There was no point in taking further action because his partner could not hold much, but there was quite a problem about the opening lead.

His normal lead would be a spade but Ely felt that South would not have jumped to three no-trump with only one spade stopper. He could still have led that spade and if the lead did not work no one would criticize him, but Ely thrived on criticism. Furthermore, he wanted to win and after considerable study Ely opened the jack of hearts.

South gave the hand the old college try and went up with dummy's king but nothing could help him. South had to go after clubs. Ely took his ace and continued hearts so that his side eventually collected six tricks and set South two.

Ely's team partners, Johnny Rau and Billy Barrett, also reached three no-trump with the North-South cards but they did not have Ely on lead against them. Their West was kind enough to open a spade and Johnny Rau who sat South, wound up making five no-trump when West did not take his ace of hearts.

Flu Bug Bats Down Batman

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The tiny flu bug has done what the big bad guys have been unable to do to actor Adam West, the Batman who quickly disposes of all evildoers in a new television series.

West, 32, was hospitalized with the flu Wednesday, but a spokesman at 20th Century-Fox studios said he was expected to return to the Batman series set Friday.

You Can See Them All in S. China Sea

By EDDIE ADAMS
NHA TRANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — If you want to meet Gene Autry, Davey Crockett, Daniel Boone, Willie Mays and Davey Jones, come to the South China Sea.

They're all here—in one squadron—flying the skies of South Viet Nam.

Explaining their job — flying men and materiel in the 345th Troop Carrier Squadron's C130 Hercules planes — is easier than explaining their names.

Take Staff Sgt. David Crockett, 28, of Jamestown, Tenn. He does not even know if he's kin to the legendary bear-wrestler and Alamo hero.

"I really took a ribbing when the song Davey Crockett was the No. 1 hit," said the sergeant. "Now it doesn't bother me at all. I really don't know if my family tree goes back that far."

Crockett says one of his buddies is actually named John Henry.

Crockett recalls he rather enjoyed meeting Daniel Boone in Okinawa a year ago. Both are flight engineers.

Boone, 23, of Foley, Ala. says "It's a name that people remember but sometimes I wish they hadn't."

When Boone went through boot camp, his instructor on the rifle range naturally figured a guy with a moniker like that was a born sharpshooter.

"I barely qualified," Boone said. "He was furious."

Boone also discovered that even in Brazil his is a exciting name.

"We were picking up some troops in Brazil to take to the Dominican Republic," Boone says, and "this one Brazilian came over and read my name tag. He spelled it out slowly, then said it loud, and louder, and ran away waving his hands and yelling 'Daniel Boone!'"

Lt. Gene Autry, 27, from Lillington, N.C., a C130 pilot, knows he is no relation of the singing cowboy but he is in a tough spot trying to tell people that. They won't believe it. He said he once saw Autry at a fair in Raleigh, N.C., but never got a chance to talk to him.

"My ID card is always coming out of my wallet," Autry says. "What is worse is that my brother-in-law is a second lieutenant in the Air Force in Orlando, Fla. His wife, my sister, gets pretty embarrassed when she introduces us. His name is Andrew Jackson. When Bob Hope had his show over here around Christmas time, I flew him around in my plane. He came over to me one day after reading my name tag and said 'I want your autograph so the people back home will believe me, and by the way, let's not fly sidesaddle while I'm aboard.'"

Other squadron members are Willie Mays, 24, of Tuskegee, Ala., with the same name as the baseball star; and pilot Davey Jones, 26, of Newport Beach, Calif. His counterpart is the sailor's sea spirit.

A' Moss' Growing Rog, Yanks All Smiles for '66

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The United States has yet to produce a road-racing driver of the stature of Scotland's Jimmy Clark or England's Stirling Moss.

This is because sports cars and sports car racing are relatively new to this country.

But George Follmer, of Pasadena, Calif., may soon change all that.

After only five years of racing, Follmer, 31, already is the U.S. road racing champion. He won that title last year by beating out more than 60 competitors in six months on the American circuit.

He also won $100,950 in prize money in nine events, while finishing ahead of Jim Hall, of Midland, Tex., in the point standings, 60-58.

Hall, who drives a Chaparral II of his own design powered by a potent Chevrolet V8 engine, was the defending national champion.

Follmer ended the year with six firsts and two seconds. He drove a Porsche-engineered Lotus 23—a car that supplies him far less go than the cars of many of his rivals.

Hall also had six first-place finishes, but he had a fourth, a sixth and a nonfinish in his other three starts. Since only the best seven finishes count in the point race, Follmer's championship total was compiled on six firsts and a second.

Yet for all his racing accomplishments, Follmer is probably the least-known national champion in the world of road racing. Again, this is because the Europeans and the big Grand Prix races get most of the headlines.

And here at home road racing takes a back seat to stock car and Indianapolis-type racing.

It may take years before road racing supplants oval racing in the United States. Those who know Follmer's driving skills say it won't take nearly as long for him to achieve status among the great drivers.

Follmer's next objective is the international championship on the Grand Prix circuit.

About the size of an office desk, the 400-pound vehicle is designed to carry two astronauts or one astronaut and 300 pounds of scientific equipment to points on the lunar surface difficult to reach with ground vehicles. A cluster of five 100-pound thrust rockets beneath the seats would provide propulsion for 30-mile round trips.

Bradley: 'Just a Nice Guy'

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Few athletes, professional or amateur, command respect like Bill Bradley.

So when he was named winner of the Sullivan Award as the nation's outstanding athlete for 1965, Billy Cunningham, Dick Van Arsdale and Fred Hetzel were probably as happy as the recipient.

Bill Bradley

They, like Bradley, were All-America selections last season. But unlike the former Princeton star, they are playing professionally now. Cunningham with Philadelphia, Van Arsdale with New York and Hetzel with San Francisco.

Last summer all four were on a State Department basketball tour of Europe. They became close friends.

"He was a little different than I had expected," Van Arsdale said. "He wasn't just a nice guy with a good mind. He was very witty and he was a good buddy. He is without a doubt the most interesting person I've ever met."

He asks YOU questions. He's actually picking your brain, but he does it so that you're never aware of it. You're never aware of it.

He doesn't sit around giving his opinions on everything, and believe me he's got a few.

"On the first part of the trip, some of the guys shied away from him, but by the end of the trip, he had nearly everyone discussing politics, Viet Nam or the race problems instead of basketball."

"He had his laughs, too. In Helsinki my brother Tom, Bill and I were doing some sightseeing. Tom had on a raincoat with a hole in the sleeve. Bill stuck his finger in the hole and the coat ripped. Then I grabbed the tear and ripped it. Bill grabbed the other sleeve and ripped it off. We tore that coat to shreds and laughed like crazy for 20 minutes. Right in the middle of town."

"My most vivid memory," says Hetzel, "is the way he would stop at the U.S. embassy wherever we played. He would ask the people in charge everything about the country we were in, from politics to customs. He just wanted to get more out of the trip. He had a tremendous desire to understand everything."

"I'll never forget the fact that there never was a doubt in his mind," said Cunningham, "about the decision to take the scholarship or play pro basketball. He didn't talk about it that much, but when he did, you could feel how much the scholarship meant to him."

Between you'n'me, Bradley has left his trademark on the present Princeton basketball team. It is a completely unselfish club which has played with poise and confidence this year. By tournament time, it should be even better.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Roger Maris sat there expressionless before the cameras. His tie was crooked and he was chewing gum.

"Smile, Rog," a Yankee publicity man said, as Maris straightened his tie. Then in a whisper he suggested Maris take the gum out of his mouth.

"There, that's much better," The Yankee image, you know. Conservative. Confident. Efficient.

Or rather, that's what it was until un-Yankee-like things began to happen two years ago.

"We aren't really rebuilding," general manager Ralph Houk said. "We're more like reviving."

"We'll get to winning again. Soon. We'll finish first this year, wait and see. A lot of people are going to be surprised."

Houk was willing to talk about recent Yankee unpleasanties but only on his own terms.

"We finished sixth last year because of injuries, and only because of injuries. The personnel we have is first-place personnel. I am convinced of that."

About a certain managerial firing, coaching changes, club dissension, traded harmonica player, barroom brawls and airport terminal parties, Houk said, "That's all in the past."

Now, spring's the thing. "It looks like Maris' hand injury is completely healed," Houk said. "He is a key to our success."

"When we get down to Florida, you can start earning some of that salary you signed for. Right, Rog?"

Maris nodded, belatedly remembering to smile. Last year, Maris played in only 46 games and hit a mere eight home runs, which at his $72,000 salary meant the homers were worth about $9,000 apiece.

He was asked what he thought would be a successful 1966.

"Winning the pennant," he said, "and helping out in the right spots, not so much hitting home runs."

It was a good day for Maris, and it has been a good winter. "I have been relaxing. No banquets. Just playing a little golf when the weather's good to strengthen my right hand," he said.

The Yankee front office was pleased. Maris, the moody unpredictable outfielder, was saying all the right things for a change.

It didn't last long. He frowned at questions about the cherished Yankee image, but admitted grudgingly, "There are certain things, I guess, that a Yankee should remember."

And from there Maris went to his pocket for another stick of gum.

Outdoors

By DICK WOLFF

I guess every fisherman has a favorite spot, a secret place where the water runs free and the fish are so big they are almost frightening. I have one on the upper Hudson.

It's a beautiful stretch of water and the trout fishing is the equal of any in the East. Aside from the enjoyment the stream has given me down through the years, I've also learned a thing or two. The most important is that if one wants to catch big fish, one must use big lures. It sounds simple but not every angler realizes it.

Large trout or bass may strike a small fly or lure, but they are more apt to take something large—a big streamer fly, a half-ounce Abu Reflex, a long, slender Eel. I've often used them to good advantage. Still, I must confess that any success I've had on the upper Hudson is due more to the river than to me.

Good rivers are hard to find these days. I'm happy to report, however, that there is legislation pending in Washington that promises to do something about this. The Wild Rivers Act has already passed the Senate and is now being considered by the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs. Rep. Wayne Aspinall, D-Colo., is chairman of the committee.

This act seeks to preserve the wilderness conditions of certain rivers, and their adjacent land areas and to make them accessible to the public for fishing and recreation.

Initially, five rivers will be affected—the Salmon and Clearwater in Idaho, the Rogue in Oregon, the Rio Grande in New Mexico, the Eleven Point in Missouri. Some 17 others, the upper Hudson among them, may eventually be added to create a Wild Rivers System.

The importance of such legislation should be obvious. Unfortunately, not every one cares, thus, sportsmen must make their feelings known on the subject.

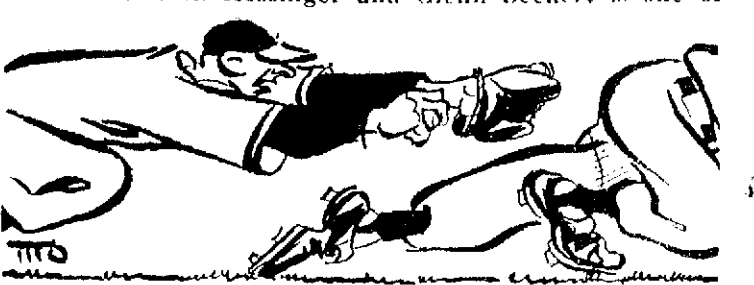

If they don't, well, those favorite spots of yours and mine may soon be nothing more than memories.

7-Chicago Cubs

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PITCHING—Leo Durocher has one of the better pitchers in baseball in Dick Ellisworth and two former stars in Bob Buhl and Larry Jackson. Buhl and Jackson aren't getting younger, which is why Durocher may use Bill Faul's hypnotic powers on the bench as well as on the mound this year. It would be something if Faul could induce Buhl and Jackson into thinking they're 21 again. And wouldn't it be even better if Bill Faul could induce Bill Faul into being better than a 6-6 pitcher? Other possible starters are Bob Hendley, Ernie Broglio and Carl Koonce. Ted Abernathy is the top man in the bullpen with help from Bob Humphreys. Most promising rookies are Bill Hands and Dave Dowling. RATING—C+

INFIELD—Ernie Banks on first and Ron Santo on third are two of the best in baseball. But the double-play combination of Don Kessinger and Glenn Beckert is one of those good-field, no-hit duos. Jim Stewart could fill in at either short or second, but he hit .223 last year. RATING—B-

OUTFIELD—Billy Williams is one of the great natural hitters in the game. Last year he hit .315 with 34 home runs and 108 RBI. George Altman is a possibility for right field with speedy Ty Cline given a good chance for center. Wes Covington, slow afoot, but a powerful man at the plate, could send Altman to the bench. RATING—C+

CATCHING—The Cubs obtained a kid named Randy Hundley in a deal with the Giants and are hoping he can be the No. 1 man behind the plate. If not, Chris Krug, Vic Roznovsky and old-timer Ed Bailey are still around. RATING—C

BENCH—Joey Amalfitano can still be counted on for a good job in the field as well as at bat. He hit .271 primarily as a pinch-hitter last season. Harvey Kuenn is another experienced hand who can play outfield or infield. Bobby Pena, the early season sensation at shortstop last year, should have enough experience now to escape another trip to the minors. RATING—C+

SUMMARY—The wind blowing off Lake Michigan this winter seems a lot stronger now that Leo Durocher is in town. But the man has the ability to push ballplayers beyond their capacity. With Banks, Santo and Williams, three of the best hitters in baseball, the Cubs certainly have the nucleus for an improved club. Durocher will supply the push that's needed. Prediction—7th.

LIP'S RETURN—Leo Durocher looks right at home already in his new shouting ground, Chicago's Wrigley Field. Durocher vows he will lead the Cubs out of the second division and could do it this year if Chicago pitching matches its solid hitting.

Guidedposts And Inflation

The unhappy reaction of labor leaders to disclosure of new administration wage-price guideposts for 1966 suggests trouble ahead for President Johnson in securing compliance. Mr. Johnson has had difficulty enough during recent months in this pursuit — for example, in the steel industry, the aluminum industry and the New York transit strike.

Labor leaders have a point when they say, no fair changing rules in the middle of the game. The guideposts will remain at 3.2 per cent for 1966, the same as last year. But the President's Council of Economic Advisors this time around changed the formula by which they arrived at that figure. In the past, the guideposts were pegged to the nation's productivity increase — or output per man-hour. Any wage or price increase beyond the rise in productivity has been considered inflationary.

Also until now the guideposts have been based on the productivity rise over the previous five years. But the council decided this year that the five-year period no longer provides a valid trend. By the old formula, the figure for 1966 should be 3.6 per cent rather than 3.2 per cent. Labor leaders therefore are somewhat justified in charging that all this is merely a political maneuver designed to hold down labor's contract gains because the government fears inflation. And labor leaders suspect they are being called upon to display more restraint than is business.

AFL-CIO President George Meany has said labor is prepared to cooperate any time President Johnson feels the danger of inflation warrants controls on all costs, prices, profits and wages. "Any such program must, however, apply equitably to all components of the cost of living as well as the cost of production," he said. "It cannot proceed piecemeal concentrating on any one sector of the economy, or restraining workers' incomes while permitting prices and profits free scope."

Wage settlements during the first nine months of last year ran 4.1 per cent, considerably above the guidepost level of 3.2 per cent. This year's guidepost figure will be even harder to enforce — which suggests there will be more industry-labor-government confrontations in the months ahead. — Houston (Tex.) Chronicle

Senators Say Mail Against Conflict 30-1

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate critics of U.S. Viet Nam policy who said they were taking their case "over the head of the President" to the American people report their mail is running 30 to 1 against escalation of the conflict.

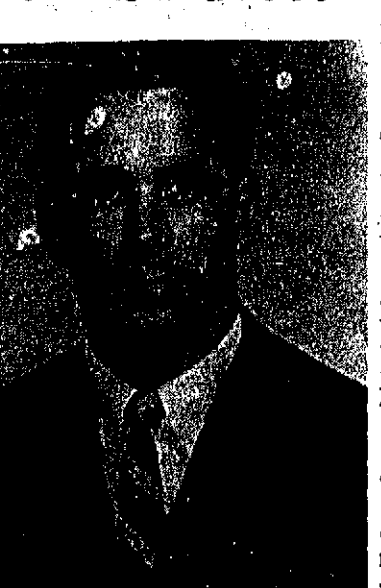

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee reported that the mail also favors its public hearings by about the same ratio.

The count, made public Friday by the committee's staff, showed that up to last Tuesday 5,000 had expressed approval of committee chairman J. W. Fulbright's opposition to escalation and in favor of the public hearings.

"Those opposed," the staff reported in a note to Fulbright "have increased to 170 mainly because of the hearings. The writers mainly object either because of the fact they are being held at all, or to the manner in which they are being conducted."

Fulbright concedes his mail normally would come most heavily from those who support his views. Before the hearings were recessed for the weekend Fulbright acknowledged "there has been some criticism of the committee for holding hearings at all. It has been said that we are giving aid and comfort to our enemies."

Hays Named V-Chairman of Red Cross

Thomas E. Hays, Jr.

Thomas E. Hays Jr., of Hope has been named state Red Cross vice-Chairman for the Union County District, according to an announcement today by Wayne Cranford of Little Rock, Red Cross volunteer national vice-chairman for Arkansas.

As a volunteer worker, Hays will be in charge of organizing Union, Calhoun, Clark, Columbia, Hempstead, LaFayette, Nevada and Ouachita counties as part of the 1966 Red Cross drive for funds.

Hays is a graduate of Virginia Military Institute and the Stoner Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers. He is president of First National Bank of Hope and is also treasurer of the Arkansas Bankers Association. Other vice-chairmen throughout the state besides Hays are Gary C. Lawrence of Fort Smith, Adrian White of Pocahontas, Bill J. Ford of Benton, David R. Lynch of Springdale, George Severson of Peel, Mrs. Doris McCastlain of Little Rock, Hubert L. Ferguson of Conway, Lunsford Bridges of Pine Bluff, and Mrs. Louise Bowker and Fred Schmutz, both of Little Rock who will be in charge of public information.

In listing the areas of emphasis considered most important this year by the Red Cross, Cranford said that the war in South Viet Nam had called for "a tremendous outlay of funds to support the increased needs of our armed forces, and a large scale disaster wrought by Hurricane Betsy has exhausted the Red Cross Disaster Fund." Cranford, who was appointed to his post by Robert W. Sarnoff of New York, president of the Radio Corporation of America who is also American Red Cross national chairman, said that Red Cross expenditures in assisting families left in the aftermath of Betsy had so far amounted to $17 million.

United Fund Is Merely a United Effort to Group All Charity Drives in One Fund

By MARY ANITA LASETER

Star Feature Writer

On Monday morning of this week the Hempstead County United Fund began its annual campaign, and even after five years of local operation of it, some people are still unsure of what this fund is for and why it is needed.

What is the United Fund? It is a united effort to raise funds in a systematic way that will prove beneficial to all concerned. The United Fund brings a big reduction in campaign expenses required to raise money, and it greatly reduces the duplication of efforts involved in the volunteer workers functioning on several fund drives. This item represents huge savings for firms whose employees work in campaigns — savings that translated into dollars, can better be used to meet needs.

A United Fund Drive eliminates the added expense of multiple drives and at the same time make it easier for the people to give. Saving in campaign expenses mean additional dollars directed toward service to the residents of Hempstead County.

Few individuals can give enough in cash at one time to meet the need of the many United Fund affiliates and services. For that reason a suggested gift scale has been worked out for salaried personnel. It is merely suggested but does not have to be followed. The scale was developed with four points in mind:

(1) Most people want a suggested scale, (2) this scale of giving will provide the needed community services if a majority of the people will follow it, (3) the scale is based on relative income and (4) all giving is voluntary.

Every year more and more industrial groups are subscribing to the United Fund plan 100 per cent. In 1966 Midwest Dairy was the first such local business to do so with numerous others following the lead.

Under the guidance of campaign chairman George Frazier, co-chairmen Wayne Russell and Johnny Turner, and 13 division chairmen, this united effort in Hope has a goal of $25,000. It will be divided among these agencies:

Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, United Cerebral Palsy, Arkansas Mental Health Association, Salvation Army, Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, local underprivileged children, Arkansas Association for Retarded Children, and Travelers Aid Association. The last two agencies were added for the first time this year.

Several other groups make their own drives in Hope, though money is also set aside for them in the United Fund. These include: March of Dimes, Heart, Cancer, Tuberculosis (Christmas Seals), Crippled Children (Easter Seals), Multiple Sclerosis, and Muscular Dystrophy. When the money offered to these agencies is not accepted, it remains in the United Fund for local use by sufferers from these diseases.

It will be noted that those agencies in the United Fund list are not all charities. Some are services, but all have a place in our lives and have attempted to raise fund for the work in individual campaigns. The groups are all good and do a good work. The United Fund is simply trying to have less operating expenses so that more money can go for what it is intended. After all, it has been proven that it costs as much to raise one dollar for a single agency as it does for all 17.

Smackover in 61-53 Victory Over Bobcats

By LARRY DON WRIGHT

Hope Star Sports Writer

The Smackover Buckaroos came fighting back after the half time intermission to defeat the Hope Bobcats, 61-53, in a District 4AA basketball game at Smackover last night.

The results allowed the Bucks to maintain their hold on second place in the conference while it pushed the Cats down a notch to an assured tie for fourth place.

Though they led at half, 32-27, the Cats were obviously even then displaying sub par form. And as the third quarter began to progress it was evident that the tables were turning. By the end of the three periods Smackover had gone ahead for good.

Although Hope did have its troubles the first two quarters, the Bobcats did manage to stay ahead. But the rest of the game emphasized Hope's lack of sharpness and form. They just were unable to stop the Bucks once the home team got hot as in the final period.

Not only was the Bobcat's defense lacking but the offense seemed fruitless as well. It seemed the harder they tried the further back they fell. At the end of one quarter the Bobcats had whittled a small lead of 15 to 12, but they were seriously hindered by the small number of rebounds accounted for.

The second period was much the same story as the first though, Hope still found itself on top of a slim lead.

Then in the third Smackover got hot and to top that off at the same time the Bobcats: ran into foul trouble. Early in the quarter two Hope players, Larry May and Bobby McGill, already had four personal penalties chalked up by their names. At the same time teammate Dennis Ramsey was credited with three fouls.

Before anyone realized it in the final episode of play the Bucks were out front by almost ten points. By then it was too late.

The defeat topped Hope to an unimpressive district record of five wins and four losses. Had they won the Cats would have moved into a tie for the second place position.

Ramsey was high point for both teams with a total of 18 points. Ronnie Ingram was not far behind with 15, followed by Stan Parriss with 11, Eddie Aslin with 4, Larry May with 3, and Bobby McGill with 2.

The Bobkittens were also knocked off by the Baby Bucks, 34-24, in their last regular district game of the season. Their Jr. High District Tournament begins Monday at Fairview.

Leading scorers for the Kittens were Ronnie Brown who sacked for 7 points along with Ricky Putman and Ronnie Jones who pushed in 6 apiece. Others scoring were Jimmy Singleton with 3 and Terry Turner with 2.

Tonight's game with Magnolia begin at 6:30 in Jones Field House with the "B" Boys match. It will be preceded by the finals of the Hope High School Intramural Tourney at 5:15 and followed by the Bobcat game at 7:45.

Johnson Is Tougher With Labor

By NEIL GILBRIDE

AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is showing impatient signs of a tougher policy toward some labor union under its wage-price guidelines program.

The administration used the guidepost policy in pressuring big business to roll back some price increases last year. Now labor and wages are getting increasing attention as inflation pressures mount.

The government so far has moved behind the scenes, for the most part, in efforts to arrest what it considers excessive wage demand by some labor unions. But an open showdown soon seems likely.

The result could be anything from a few minor bumps and bruises to a major rupture between the Johnson administration and organized labor.

President George Meany of the 13-million-member AFL-CIO already has warned that labor will accept no federal controls on wages unless they are equally applied to price and profits. The giant labor federation will take up the whole question at its meetings starting in Miami Beach next Monday.

The government already has made one abortive attempt to persuade construction unions to agree to a compulsory plan of wage settlements.

The reply was a stinging "no." But one high labor official said, "I think they'll be leaning on us from now on."

If President Johnson really wants to get tough — and so far he hasn't — he can wield the same nightstick against many unions that pressured the roll-back of steel, copper and aluminum price increases last year.

This is the gigantic power of the more than $50 billion a year the government pours out for federal construction contracts, defense purchasing and other spending in the private contracts.

If the threat of switching contracts from firms that refused to lower prices worked, why wouldn't the threat of switching to nonunion labor?

In the case of construction, there is plenty of nonunion labor or at least non-AFL-CIO workers around to use as a threat to switch many federal contracts.

Whether Johnson would go that far is by no means certain, but one informed government source confirmed that there was mounting federal pressure on the building and construction unions.

"I think the head man (Johnson) wants to keep the freeze on wages, prices and profits," this source said.

In the case of wages, this obviously can't be accomplished by a simple appeal to labor leaders who have consistently ignored White House guidelines.

The initial AFL-CIO attack will be against Johnson's Council of Economic Advisers rather than on the President himself.

"These academicians don't ever face the problems that other people do," said on high federation spokesman angrily. "These (workers) are live people, not a set of figures marching neatly across a page of figures," he added.

In the case of the construction unions, labor spokesmen argue that although hourly wages are high, bad weather keeps men out of work most of the winter and sharply slashes annual income.

With many inflationary signs already evident, the coming year will severely test whether Johnson can put enough iron in his voluntary guidelines to avoid outright wage-price controls which nobody really wants.

But he will have a tough job persuading labor.

Peace Score Can Upset the Market

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A peace scare can upset the delicate balance of the stock market. But the real thing — actual peace negotiations — would have only passing and relatively minor effect on the general economy.

Prosperity at home isn't at stake. Most business leaders have stressed before — and will be saying again privately in the wake of the Tuesday turmoil on the stock market — that the economy is too large and too well-based at the moment for peace talks aimed at ending the Viet Nam war to require more than readjustments. And these the economy could take in stride, industrial leaders stress.

Some defense orders might be canceled. Some military spending might be foregone. But the major outlays for defense still would stay high.

And the civilian economy — the really big thing — would be freed of some of the threats now sighted. These include the possibility of higher taxes if the Viet Nam war gets still more expensive, the chance of official controls being imposed on wages and prices, or the fear of a war-nourished inflationary spurge.

The stock market has been called a barometer of the course the economy may be taking six months hence. But in the matter of peace scares or war scares it usually looks more like a thermometer of emotional confusion.

The Tuesday performance was an example. A report that North Viet Nam asked India to seek a peaceful solution of the war sent a shudder through the market. Trading was too swift for the high-speed tickers to handle. Stocks were dumped — especially those of companies with defense orders. The thinking of traders apparently was that stock prices had been pushed to current heights only in the belief that the war would be expanded rather than ended.

The market turned around just as fast when the reports proved to be the usual propaganda moves of North Viet Nam with small prospects of getting anywhere. The market finally closed higher than it had the day before.

The emotional selling had furnished opportunities for bargain hunters to get some sound stocks cheap. It also caused some worrying about the psychological effect of such market jitteriness on the general public.

Some of the possible witnesses on the administration side went with him.

The White House insisted there was no connection between the conference and the hearings. Before leaving Washington, Johnson said the focus of the conference would be on planned efforts of the Saigon government to promote social and political reforms, with American aid. All top American officials at the meetings said this was the focal point.

Yet the conference ended with public attention fixed on other matters: possible intensification of the war and potential roadblocks to any moves toward a peaceful settlement.

In this particular, Johnson's plans may have gone awry.

Meningitis Strikes on Army Bases

By PAUL RECER

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Trainees at Lackland Air Force Base are in semi-isolation and authorities at three Army bases have taken similar measures to combat outbreaks of spinal meningitis, which has killed two recruits this week.

Meningitis, which is spread like a cold and has the same early symptoms, has stricken at least 28 other trainees.

Authorities at Lackland, where all of the Air Force inductees are trained, announced that new recruits are to be sent to Amarillo Air Force Base, Tex., to avoid exposing more trainees to the disease.

The two fatalities are Jerry L. Stagle, 19, Akron, Ohio, who died in his Ft. Gordon, Ga. barracks.

Authorities reported five cases of meningitis at Lackland, three at Ft. Gordon, five at Ft. Polk, La., and 13 at Ft. Knox, Ky. Two who contracted the disease last month are recovering at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

There have been 58 cases of meningitis this year in the Army's 124,000 basic trainees, the Army said in Washington. Three of those infected have died.

Airmen trainees at Lackland were advised that there is safety in five feet of distance and told to try to maintain this much separation from each other.

All training flights, with about 55 men each, at the base have been canceled. Most of the recreation centers, such as the theater, the bowling alley and the service club, have been closed.

Trainees are confined to the base, but permanent personnel and civilian employees are allowed to continue their normal activities. Physical training for the trainees also has been curtailed.

Honolulu Meet Really Puzzling

EDITOR'S NOTE — Frank Cormier, AP White House correspondent who was one of the newsmen covering the Honolulu meeting between President Johnson and South Vietnamese leaders, reviews some of the puzzling elements of the conference.

An A P News Analysis

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's meeting in Honolulu with leaders of South Viet Nam was one of the more puzzling international conferences of recent years.

Despite a torrent of public and private pronouncements by its participants, the whole meeting retained an element of mystery.

The mid-Pacific parley was born, in fact, under puzzling circumstances. Johnson announced plans for it last Friday and left for Hawaii Saturday. All evidence at the conference site bore the earmarks of hasty preparation, at least so far as physical arrangements were concerned.

Item: only hours before the President's arrival, walls were torn open in his Waikiki Hotel suite — so air conditioning could be installed.

Johnson flew to Hawaii as the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, dominated by critics of his Southeast Asia policy, was holding nationally televised hearings on the Viet Nam situation.

Some of the possible witnesses on the administration side went with him.

The White House insisted there was no connection between the conference and the hearings. Before leaving Washington, Johnson said the focus of the conference would be on planned efforts of the Saigon government to promote social and political reforms, with American aid. All top American officials at the meetings said this was the focal point.
